* There's a territory in Costa Rica called Territorio de Zaguates, or Land of the Strays, which is basically a huge, no-kill dog shelter where one can hike for free with the canines.

* And while we're on the subject of dogs: "Dogfooding" is the term for using a company's product to gain the trust of customers. It's said a dog food company president ate a can of the firm's food in a shareholders meeting to demonstrate that "if it's good for me, it's good for your dog." We'll take his word for it, thank you.

to Southside, relives march to Final Four

PERRY MERIDIAN STANDOUT

By Al Stilley

Jayden Taylor returned to the Southside Thursday.

The 6-4 backcourt standout for North Carolina State University was back in the Perry Meridian Middle School gymnasium to talk about his journey from Perry Meridian High School to Butler University to the Wolfpack and to the NCAA Final Four.

He was interviewed by Olivia West of Pacers Sports and Entertainment to the repeated applause of former teachers, Perry Township youth players, middle school players, adults, and fans. Afterward he took time to have his photos taken with scores of youngsters individually and sign photos, basketballs and even shoes.

Before the formal appearance in the gym, Taylor took time to be interviewed exclusively by The Southsider

"When I was the age of these kids (middle school), I would have loved to have heard from somebody at this level (NCAA D1)," said Taylor, who later relived his experiences as a student-athlete.

He played two seasons at Butler University and transferred to NC State for a different style of play and higher hopes of playing in the NCAA tournament, a matter that is now legendary in the ACC. After a non-satisfying 17-15 record before the ACC tourney. The Wolfpack miraculously won five games in five nights for the ACC title and automatic advancement to the NCAA tourney where they won four games before losing to Purdue in the Final Four.

"We knew it was win or go home," Taylor recalled. "If we didn't win every game in the it to the NCAA. We went in with the mindset 'Why not us,' and we ran with it."

Taylor's role changed during the ACC tourney with the return of guard DJ Horne that pushed the Southsider into a valuable sixth-man role.

"It was for the best of the team," Taylor said. "I never complained or said anything, but let my game do the talking.

Taylor scored 11 points and grabbed two rebounds in 29 minutes against Purdue as the Boilers won, 63-50. Overall, Taylor averaged 11.2 points and 3.6 rebounds at NC State.

He also revealed that a lateseason players-only meeting was the catalyst for their postseason success.

"After that, it was the difference between night and day," Taylor observed. Taylor will be on the Southside for a few weeks to see a Fever game, do some shopping, and hang with his friends before resuming his training in Atlanta. He plans to return to NC State and improve his overall game, leadership abilities, hopefully return to the

"Coach (Mark) James prepared me for a high level by making sure I did all the little things - that's how you get on the court to play. I found out not to be bothered by those 3-. 4-, and 5-star rankings because it doesn't really matter when you step onto that college court.'

Former BGHS standout Sanders becomes Hornets boys' basketball coach

Moving up from his JV and assistant Beech Grove High School standout David Sanders is the new boys' varsity head

Sanders, a 2008 BGHS graduate, succeeds Joe Rihm who recently stepped down to continue with his duties as assistant athletic director at the high school.

As a Hornet player, Sanders was a valued member of the sectional championship team coached by Randy Males that won playoff thrillers to break a 16year program title drought.

In 2022, Sanders returned to the Hornet program as eighth-grade coach, the same year that the Hornets won the IHSAA 3A state championship. The next year, Sanders moved up as JV and assistant varsity coach under new coach Rihm.

"BG is home," Sanders stated in a news release online at beechgroveathletics.com. "I see this as an amazing opportunity to build on what coach Males and coach Matt English set For the past three seasons, Sanders also has worked tirelessly by providing workout opportunities for youth players on Wednesday and Friday mornings in the BGHS gymnasium with girls' head varsity coach Amy Selk. They have 30 youths participating each morning in the workouts as they continue to build the basketball program from the bottom to the top.

At the varsity level, Sanders will rely upon his pillars of the Hornet Culture, including accountability, discipline, toughness, and family as well as honoring coach English's mandate of "WeB4Me." Sanders and the basketball Hornets also are working on conditioning, weight-training, and skill development three times a week after school.

Easy Ways to Begin Exercising This Spring

By Sarah Stelzner, M.D.

While we know exercise is good for us, we might not know how little of it can significantly improve our mental and physical health. Consider a 2022 study led by Matthew Pearce, Ph.Ď., in JÁMA Psychiatry. Study participants doing what amounted to an hour and fifteen minutes of "brisk walking" weekly were associated with an 18% lower risk of depression compared to those who did not exercise.

In other words, small chang-

If you are only doing a little or no physical activity, start with doing more of what you already do. Čalled habit stacking, this practice helps ensure you stick with exercise. This practice is hard to start, but you will find the changes worthwhile once you start feeling more flexible and energetic.

Write down your regular routines for 30 days, as the American College of Lifestyle Medicine (ACLM) recommends, noting possibilities for daily changes. Be sure to review your activities without judgment. Once you have a handle on your activities, adapt and add a few more. You can even strengthen your core while brushing your teeth if vou do balance exercises at the same time. If you are an avid gamer, move around more. The 20-8-2 rule might not always fit perfectly into your game play that is, 20 minutes sitting, eight standing and two exercis- but you can get close. While watching baseball or a favorite television show, make some silly moves. Do a dance with your dog when the umpire makes a bad call or when a dating show participant mentions "my journey." Add jumping jacks between dishes you are washing. Just think of these moves as purposeful fidgeting.

Maybe you usually gather with friends at a diner weekly. Meet them on alternate weeks at a park for a walk or jog instead of or in addition to your meal. You can find helpful lists of trails at https://www.indianatrails.com/marion-county. Social connectivity is a pillar of good health according to the ACLM, so why not combine socializing with exercise? Take advantage of nearby offerings as well, such as the Eskenazi Health Healthy Me program (https://www. eskenazihealth.edu/programs/ healthy-me). See additional habit-stacking ideas from the American Heart Association at https://www.heart.org/en/ healthy-living/healthy-lifestyle/ habits/fit-bits.

The recommended amount of exercise per week according to The Physical Activity Guide lines for Americans (located at health.gov) is 150 minutes of moderate or 75 of vigorous aerobic exercise. As many as 1 in 10 premature deaths could be avoided if we were able to complete half that amount according to a study led by Leandro Garcia, D.Sc., in the February 2023 issue of the British Journal of Sports Medicine.

Little steps might not be exciting, but they can quickly become permanent fixtures in your life, unlike the week you tried Tae Bo or CrossFit. Such steps can become so automatic that they do not feel like exercise at all. Even better, once you add motion to everyday habits, you will find it so much easier to add Perry Township Schools in the mid 50s through the late 60s. At that time, the district had started their own fleet and purchased ours.

When it had become apparent that we would be selling our buses, I began making contacts regarding employment opportunities. I also attended a school bus driver training conference in New York City that was quite an experience.

Within a few days, I had been hired as a driver trainer and safety instructor for The Community School Bus and Charter Bus System located in Stanton, California,

I arrived in Southern California well before the school year started and got busy. The company had more than 600 buses and several trainers. We worked extremely hard that first semester and into the new year. I noticed that most of the training upgrades to larger equipment had been completed.

One day, my supervisor asked me to ride with a new driver on her route. He explained that she was the fourth driver assigned to that route that year. After riding with her for several days, it was apparent that she had her hands full with this unruly group of students. She resigned after a few more weeks.

I was asked to take over that route for a while. The toughest route was the junior high route. Those students lived on and around the El Toro Marine Base in Irvine, California. I got along pretty well with most of the student riders and did not have many problems finishing out that school year. There was one student, Jackie, who was a handful. She would return home (Indianapolis) and help start a wonderful driving school business in Broad Ripple. We used simulators to teach beginners both adults and teenagers plus we offered advanced training for company employed drivers.

One afternoon when entering I-465 from U.S. 32 from the Southside, I passed a hitchhiker. I had never considered picking up a hitchhiker before, but this time I stopped. The person got into the car without a word and did not even look in my direction.

I was stopped on the berm of the entrance ramp. I looked at the young lady for a couple of minutes and finally said, "Jackie". She finally looked my way and as we made eye contact, she started It was, indeed, Jackie. She had been hitchhiking from her home in California trying to get to Maryland to reconnect with her birth father. She was tired, exhausted and a bit scared. I called in to our office and took the remainder of the day off

We got something to eat, and Jackie told me some stories about her trip. We then called her mom. Later that afternoon, I purchased Jackie a Greyhound Bus ticket back to California.

I think she was feeling much better as I took her to the bus station that evening. I never heard from Jackie after that, but I still think of her every time I use that ramp onto I-465.

A native of Richmond, Indiana, he graduated from Centerville High School and moved to Indianapolis more than 20 years ago. He came to the area working as a Behavior Consultant for individuals with developmental disabilities This eventually led to serving as Chief Clinical Officer of Greenwood headquartered, Cornerstone Autism Center, an ABA therapy provider. The education and experience proved to be invaluable in his future endeavors with man's best doing at Cornerstone and am really proud of the work they are continuing to do, but after 25 years in the field I found myself being pulled toward a new challenge," Weadick told The Southsider Voice.

Weadick opened Top Tier K-9 January 2023 in Greenwood and explained one reason for opening the facility. "I love seeing the difference training can make in a dog and for the lives of family members." He received his master's certification from Top Tier K-9 Academy for Dog Trainers. Top Tier K-9 uses a science-based balanced approach to training according to a description on its website. Also, training includes a complete evaluation and defines the needs of your dog

He told The Southsider Voice he is open to the public and is ready to train.

"We customize a training plan for a dog to what the family wants and needs. Most training is conducted in a two or threeweek format," Weadick said. "We offer board and train and day training options depending on the needs of the dog and their owners.

He described several instances where Top Tier K-9 was able to help families. "We have helped clients who have physically not been able to walk their overly exuberant dogs transition to loose-leash walking, instilled confidence in dogs who were fearful of new places and people, and of course supported families simply wanting to integrate their ill-mannered but well-meaning dog more fully into their
