McClure emphasized, "We are confident that this first large step toward redevelopment in Southport will be the catalyst for additional development as well as encouraging locally owned businesses to locate within the Southport area to make our city a viable destination on the Southside."

The announcement formalizes an $18 million investment - largest ever - in Southport for The Jacob, a unique highquality, four-story, 93 market-rate apartment homes with modern community amenities, and a creekside pet park.

Designed to attract and retain young professionals, seniors, and empty nesters to downtown Southport, The Jacob amenities include a state-ofthe-art fitness center, a work-from-home lounge with Wi-Fi, indoor bike storage, and a courtyard with fire pit and gas grills.

Apartment units at The Jacob will feature modern kitchens with stainless steel appliances, granite countertops, and a tile backsplash; high-end interior finishes; a full-size washer and dryer; and balcony or patio.

The past challenges to land the proper development on the site was emphasized by Southport Mayor James Cooney, who served on the city council for several years.

"This is our fourth rodeo," Cooney recalled of the challenges of the past 12 years to finally land a high-quality development of the parcel. "This will be Southport's anchor. It will kick start additional investment in downtown Southport - the first of many steps to make Southport an even more desirable city in which to live.'

The Jacob was awarded a Redevelopment Tax Credit of $2.2 million by the Indiana Economic Development Corporation (IEDC). Rebar Development serves as the property developer with construction through The Ridge Group. Shelby Bowen, CEO of Rebar Development, and Tyler Ridge Sr. and Tyler Ridge II of The Ridge Group were among dignitaries at the groundbreaking along with Rep. Mike Speedy and Sen. Cyndi Carrasco, who represent the Southside in the Indiana Statehouse.

They also consider The Jacob as the project to transform Southport, most known for Long's Bakery and the historic Southport Fieldhouse.

Cooney said that the city began working with Rebar Development in 2019 with the groundbreaking and hospitality gathering afterward signifying a longtime dream come true.

'This has been well worth the wait," Rebar Development's Bowen said. "This will be the catalyst to bring more and more people to Southport."

The Jacob is expected to be complete in fall of 2025 with leasing beginning in the spring of 2025. Info: www.

Legendary Crispus Attucks High School two-time IHSAA state champion boys' basketball coach Ray Crowe was remembered Friday again in Johnson County with a new state historical marker on Center Street and a special ceremony at the Whiteland High School gymnasium. Crowe grew up on a farm in Johnson County and was a multi-sport student-athlete at Whiteland High School and later at Indiana Central College (now University of Indianapolis) in the 1930s. He became the bovs' basketball coach at Attucks in 1950 and mentored the Tigers to four state championship appearances, winning the coveted trophy in 1955 and 1956, the first all-Black high school to snare the coveted titles.

Decatur-Perry Township girls inspired at motivational STRIVE brunch

Prominent innovative speakers at the inaugural STRIVE luncheon for middle school and high school girls included, from left, Kelly Gunnels Valines, University of Cincinnati Health Medical Trauma Center; Brittany Gross, Indiana Department of Health division service program manager; Southside author L.C. Young; Jeana Jefferson, master of ceremonies, Decatur Middle School; and Aspen Lovejoy, Perry Township Schools language arts teacher.

The answers varied but ranged predictably from helping people, shopping, art, writing, cooking, singing and more.

STRIVE brunch Saturday were

ship attending the inaugural

The all-female invitees took part in a three-hour get-together that nourished their desire for self-esteem and empowerment. Along the way Saturday, they met other girls who face similar challenges.

"The value of today is for these girls to be surrounded by positivity and by positive women and to understand that we all have a village," explained Jeana Jefferson, community liaison at Decatur Middle School. "This enables them to realize they can learn from people outside their normal routine.

Jefferson served as master of ceremonies at the brunch that featured five speakers who emphasized the acronym of STRIVE:

Strong
Talented
Resilient Intelligent

Victorious

Ever-evolving Jefferson revealed the many adult women in her life growing up that urged her to see the good in life. "Women helping women; girls helping girls," she said. "You have many cheerleaders in your corner – family, friends, community - learn from them. But first, you must love yourself before you can be loved.

The unique session at the Perry Township Schools Compass Education Center was motivational in every which way: from a wrist corsage for each participant, plastic pink toy eyeglasses to help them focus, and the opportunity for new friendships with female students and adults.

They were asked what they were passionate about by Aspen Lovejoy, a Perry Township elementary school teacher, as she emphasized their "journey of self-discovery."

Lovejoy urged, "You are important; you are valued. Your doubts are lies that are keeping you from being strong Believe in yourself; lift yourself up. Failure is not the end, it is a stepping stone to success.

Kelly Gunnels Valines of the University of Cincinnati Health Medical Trauma Center has personally and professionally witnessed the trauma of violence. She was a victim of childhood and adult abuse, suffered the loss of a brother who was murdered, admitted to teenage rebellion, and at the age of 17 years, gave birth to a baby boy

"My past does not dictate my future," she said while professing her faith. He (God) pursued me in all my brokenness. He placed amazing people in my life to encourage me and who gave me great counsel on my life's journey, and He is still doing it today. He will do the same for you all as well." The words resilient and intelligent fit together as a hand is to a glove. To be broken, to go through problems and difficulties and hard times is to be resilient and willing to get wisdom ... you are not alone on your journey we call life.'

Southside author L.C. Young capped the inaugural STRIVE brunch by urging attendees to write down one stepping stone that serves as a personal movement on their mountain to reach for 2024

She said, "Whatever it is you want to grow in, improve on, write it down. Anything you see for yourself in your life, write it down: but it has to be something you have to accomplish for you . nobody can choose success except for you.

Uncle Wiggily Longears

A few weeks ago, my article was about my father's milk route that took him out into the farm country, picking up eight 10-gallon cans of fresh milk from dairy farmers and delivering it to a local Indianapolis dairy – a seven day a week job, including holidays. As a young boy, I liked that he would be home and finished for the day at about 2:20 in the afternoon, with the exception of a day or two of some maintenance on his truck. He needed to always be well ahead of any maintenance problems, because for a few years, it was our only vehicle.

I remember family rides to grandparents' houses and also to visit cousins. My sister was incredibly young at that time. I remember her sitting on mom's lap and I was seated between mom and dad.

My family has always been a newspaper reading family. Because my father started his milk route so early, we subscribed to *The India*napolis News. There were three daily newspapers in Indianapolis at that time. The Indianapolis Star was a seven day a week, morning newspaper. The Indianapolis News was a six day a week afternoon paper. The same company owned them. The Indianapolis Times was also an afternoon paper.

Most afternoons, our father would sit down in his favorite chair to read the paper. This was a time before much television news was available. He would read for a while and then he would call my sister, Kathy, and myself over to climb up onto the big soft arms of his chair and he would read the funnies to us.

I remember that he picked a few of the comic strips that we might understand and enjoy. After we finished with the comics. there was a daily story posted on the comic pages section of the newspaper. It was about an elderly rabbit.

Uncle Wiggily Longears was the main character in a series of children's stories by American author, Howard R. Garis. He began authoring these stories for the Newark News in 1910. He penned an Uncle Wiggily story every day for more than 52 years and published 79 books in his lifetime.

My sister and I listened to Uncle Wiggily stories six days per week for several years. It was some wonderful family time. I can close my eyes and see my sister seated on the opposite arm of dad's chair while we are listening to a story.

A number of years ago, when our grandsons were young, I thought about Uncle Wiggily. I looked him up on my computer and that is when I found out about Howard R. Garis and that he had lots of Uncle Wiggily books published and available for purchase

I ordered one of the books and was incredibly pleased when it arrived. I read it a couple of times and took me right back to the left arm of my dad's chair. I did not remember the exact stories, but each different character that appeared allowed my memory to cause a smile.

Soon, I introduced my grandsons to Uncle Wiggily. We read stories for several years. Hoved doing that. It was nice to sit quietly with the boys and share those stories.

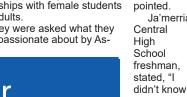

Several years later, our Therapy Dog, Stuart, and I were doing reading programs at a couple of the Beech Grove City Schools. A few times, I took the Uncle Wiggily book, and I would read a couple of stories to a group. The kids loved it.

Sering excelled both inside and outside of the classroom. Earning the Academic Honors Diploma with Distinction, she will graduate with a 4.47 cumulative GPA. It has been my privilege to have known her since she was a very young child and to watch her grow into the amazing young lady she is today."

Borders has shown incredible dedication throughout high school. He is an Indiana Rising Star, a state Spell Bowl champion, an Indiana Academic All Star nominee and is earning an Academic Honors Diploma with Distinction, taking one of the hardest course loads a student at Roncalli can take.

With Roncalli High School putting a large emphasis on the traits of its namesake, Saint John XXIII, Lachlan's band director wrote, "Lachlan dedicates his time and service every week performing in Mass. IWU WITH GREENWOOD'S REED HEADING TO NAIA NATIONAL TOURNEY

Cougars and Trojans close out historic seasons

By Al Stilley Editor

Greenwood Christian Academy and Center Grove closed out their historic boys' basketball campaigns by bowing out of the IHSAA playoffs in their opening match-ups Saturday in semistate action.

GCA, after earning its first trip to a semistate, fell to Bethesda Christian, 53-35 at the fabled "Hatchet House" in Washington.

The Cougars finish 18-8 after dropping their semistate opener against No. 8 Bethesda Christian.

Coach Jackson Williams' squad, ranked 13th in Class A, captured its first regional championship earlier in the playoffs against Oldenburg Academy. They outed defending Class A state champion Lutheran in the sectional championship game.

GCA will graduate only

Jordan Taulman, and Reid Smith - from this season's history-making team. They expect to return next season with juniors Noah Reed, Evan McIntire, Ben Comeford, Eli Jackson, and Jack Franey plus sophomore Will Jackson and freshman starter Will Simons.

Center Grove, with another 20-plus win season, never got untracked against 4A No. 1 Ben Davis, 75-49 at New Castle. The favored Giants jumped to a 19-11 firstquarter lead and never looked back, winning by a stunning 26-point margin.

Coached by veteran Zach Hahn (21-5), Center Grove ran into the multi-talented Giants (22-5) in a revival of their classic MIC duals. Ten Trojans scored against the Giants with Jalen Bundy and Peyton Byrd, each scoring 10 points, the only Trojans in double figures. Joey Schmitz added nine points.

The Trojans claimed their fifth sectional championship under coach Hahn and 17th title in program history, CG claimed the regional trophy by defeating rival Franklin at Southport Fieldhouse to advance to the 4A Elite Eight. CG will graduate eight players from this season's squad: Schmitz, Bundy, Byrd, Will Spellman, Dylan Meador, Ben Chestnut, Grant Long, and Carson Newell. Due to the NCAA Regional at Gainbridge Fieldhouse this week, the IHSAA State Finals are set for Saturday, March 30: 10:30 a.m., 1A, Bethesda Christian (27-4) vs. Ft. Wayne Canterbury (18-9); 12:45 p.m., 2A, Brownstown Central (27-4) vs. Wapahani (26-2); 3A, 6 p.m., Scottsburg (24-5) vs. South Bend St. Joseph (20-9); and 4A, 8:15 p.m., Ben Davis (25-4) vs. Fishers (28-1). Football coach

"The football coaching aspect is not even what I personally will miss the most," Enright added. "Our relationship was amazing. He was my right-hand man, and whatever we did as a program, Max was right there with me making those decisions. He worked extremely hard and cared so deeply about helping young men be the best version of themselves.

"Not a day went by at DC that he didn't text me or stop by my classroom and ask, 'Can I help you with anything?' From academic support for our young men, to mental and emotional support daily, from recruiting seminars and hosting coaching clinics, from Hudl data to cleaning the equipment room, Max did everything, every day."

A new coach

While Enright has not yet named a new defensive coordinator, he has added Leland Kinnett to his staff as defensive backs and special teams coach.

"Coach Kinnett comes to us after coaching at Center Grove, Mooresville and Indian Creek," Enright noted. "We are excited to have him join our team!"

FRMAKER!

By Al Stilley Editor

Looking at the NCAA men's basketball tournament pairings, it's easy to see why there are tears in Terre Haute and in the Big East.

After its finest season since the Larry Bird era, Indiana State University (28-6) was snubbed by the tournament selection committee after the Sycamores fell to Drake, 84-80 in the Missouri Valley Conference's championship game and resultant loss of an automatic bid. The Sycamores' fate was complicated Sunday as five lower-seed teams captured tourney titles (automatic bids), adding to ISU's plight as a potential at-large team.

Also disappointing, the usually deep Big East qualified only three teams for the NCAA tourney with defending national champion Connecticut (31-3) being seeded No. 1 overall the day after Purdue (29-4) fell to Wisconsin in the Big 10 tourney semifinal match-up.

Purdue retained its No. 1 seed in the Midwest with UConn No. 1 in the East, Houston (30-4) in the South, and North Carolina (27-7) in the West.

Only UConn, Marquette (25-9), and Creighton (23-9) will represent the Big East, leaving Seton Hall (20-12), Rick Pitino-coached St. John's (20-13), and Providence (21-13) on the sidelines.

Enough about teams that didn't wind up in the 68team tourney with the Big 12 landing a record eight teams and the Mountain West six teams.

Along with the pairings announcement, a random draw of entered advertisers of The Southsider Voice has added business interest in the tourney throughout the Southside.

The tournament opened Tuesday at Dayton, Ohio with Wagner vs. Howard and Colorado State vs. Virginia in play-in games; tonight, first-time NCAA tourney qualifier Grambling State meets Montana State and Colorado plays Boise State.

And then first rounds are Thursday-Saturday and Friday-Sunday to decide the Sweet 16 teams.

In the MidWest Region, Purdue is still considered the favorite even after falling to Wisconsin. The Boilers lost their tourney opener last year. That loss combined with the sobering experience of losing to the Badgers Friday should be their final wake-up call. The Boilers have a force on both ends with 7-4 senior Zach Edey as a rim threat and defender. It is hoped that Purdue's backcourt experience and depth would cure any short-comings.

The Boilers have the luxury of playing at Gainbridge Fieldhouse against the Grambling-Montana State play-in winner Friday and hopefully Saturday. No. 4-seed Kansas (22-10) is in the same bracket, but the Jayhawks are without their two leading scorers putting them in danger of losing to first-round foe Samford (29-5). Gonzaga (25-7), not as strong as in past years, meets McNeese (30-3) with a loaded backcourt.

No. 2-seed Tennessee (24-8) is in the lower bracket, but the Vols could meet Texas (20-12) and eventually face dangerous Creighton. The Vols open Thursday against last year's tourney darling St. Peter's (19-13)

1 seed despite getting thumped by Iowa State in the Big 12 tourney. Nebraska (23-10), Wisconsin (22-13), and unpredictable Duke (24-8) are in their same upper bracket. The lower bracket features No. 2-seed Marquette (25-9) that opens against my alma mater Western Kentucky (22-11). No. 3-seed Kentucky (23-9) is in the same bracket and the Wildcats know how to score In the West Region, North Carolina squeaked into the No. 1 seed and could run into the Michigan State-Mississippi State winner in their second game with Alabama (21-11) in the same bracket. The lower bracket features Arizona (25-8) with a fairly easy path.

Roessler shared, "Grandpa was one of my favorite people on earth, so of course I sat right next to him and he told me why he was a Boilermaker ... Because they come to work everyday, and besides, he's tired of everybody trying to shove IU down his throat. That was all it took.

We have nothing to prove, yet a lot to prove, We've done so much, but not enough time for the Boilermakers to become the history makers. #WhyNotUs in the South; No. 12-seed McNeese (30-3) and unheralded No. 6-seed South Carolina (26-7) in the MidWest; and No. 12-seed Grand Canyon (29-4) and No. 11 New Mexico (26-9) in the West.

In the East Regional, UConn still stands as the favorite based on their remarkable campaign with losses only to Kansas, Seton Hall, and Creighton. The Huskies are riding a seven-game winning streak. No. 4 seed and SEC tourney champion Auburn (27-7) is in the same bracket.

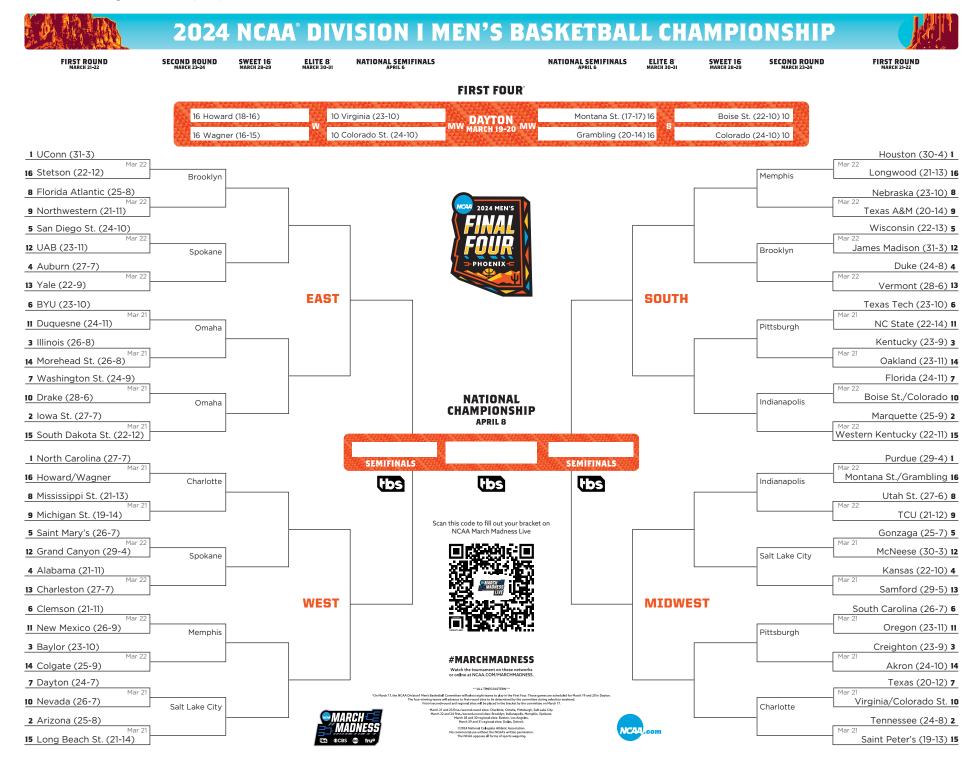

No. 2 seed Iowa State (27-7) is in the lower bracket but could face BYU (23-10) or well-rounded Illinois (26-8).

In the South Region, Houston (30-4) is the No.

Looking for dark horses, look no further than No. 10-seed Drake (28-6) in the East; No. 12 James Madison (31-3) and energized No. 11-seed North Carolina State (22-14) with former Perry Meridian standout Jayden Taylor (Butler transfer)
